SCHAFF LECTURES 2022 VIDEO

Central to the Christian tradition is the idea of loving your neighbor. This lecture focuses on the ways in which the COVID-19 pandemic has revealed not only lovelessness within our societies, but also hidden forms of evil that have individual and political significance.

Dr. John Swinton argues for a post-COVID imagination that helps us to see wickedness and utilize Christian practices as a way of countering such sins and enabling our neighbors and ourselves truly to experience the kind of love that God requires.
