

Awakening the Spirit of Healing and Restoration

What would it be like to restore sanity in our world and our souls? What kind of leadership creates the conditions for people to be generous, creative, and kind? In challenging, troubling, or dark times, how do we care spiritually for ourselves and others?

Join Pittsburgh Theological Seminary and the Pneuma Institute for a two-day conference led by Margaret Wheatley, Leanna Fuller, and Michael Mervosh. The conference is designed to spark creativity, promote healing and wholeness, and begin the processes of restoration and reconciliation in ourselves and in our communities. Gather with like minds for a shared experience of global awakening with inspiring speakers, engaging workshops, and restorative practices in community.

Come into an environment designed to promote learning, build community, and restore your own state of being with music, meditative practices, and table fellowship.
