

WEATHER UPDATE

Due to weather conditions, classes are cancelled this evening, Monday, October 29, 2012. The Barbour Library will close at 7 PM.

We are closely watching local weather conditions resulting from hurricane Sandy. The Pittsburgh area is currently under a high wind warning, and we expect to have significant rain over the next 24-48 hours. At the present time we anticipate running classes as scheduled tomorrow. However, should the situation change, we will utilize SHOFAR, local news stations, and our website to update the PTS community. If electric power is lost, we will rely on SHOFAR and our local news stations for communication of any further information.

By all accounts this is likely to be a very damaging storm for many people. Please take a moment to pray for all who will be affected and for the many emergency responders who will be working during and after the storm. Take care and be safe.
